

November 20, 2009, 12:37 pm

Payard Returns (Again!); L.A. Burdick Chocolate Shop Arrives

By FLORENCE FABRICANT

Michael Falco for The New York Times A pastry case at the now-closed Payard on the Upper East Side.

Pastry-loving Upper East Siders who have been bereft since François Payard closed his patisserie and restaurant in June can satisfy their sweet tooth once more. Many of his specialties, including macarons, cookies and chocolates are available at Butterfield Market. His bûche de Noël, a Christmas mainstay for years, will reappear in December. (Mr. Payard started selling a more limited line of sweets in the Mauboussin jewelry boutique on Madison Avenue a few weeks ago.)

Butterfield Market: 1114 Lexington Avenue (78th Street); (212)-288-7800.